Directors and staff of the Trinity County Resource Conservation District recognize the importance of protecting and conserving California’s water resources for its many beneficial uses including for wildlife habitat, recreation, agriculture and commerce. Conservation of natural resources is a primary purpose for the District’s existence. As such, it is incumbent upon the District to set an example of stewardship of our natural resources.

Water conservation, the protection of water quality and the provision of public education addressing the need to conserve water shall be integral to the operation of the District. The Trinity County Resource Conservation District will at all times endeavor to conserve water resources, protect water quality and provide the public with helpful information that promotes the conservation of water resources.
